DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 12, 81-84, 86, 92, 94-113 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 3,211,354 (Dugard) in view of US 4,269,343 (Siegel) and US 5,395,046 (Knobbe). Dugard teaches storage adapted to retain the molten solder (figure 1, item 10) capable of being unheated when the device is turned off; and a first handle adapted to couple to a vacuum source and provide a passage within the first handle, which has a opening in the side thereof defining a cavity, to convey the vacuum source to the tip to retrieve the melted solder, the first handle having an trigger actuator and a cavity adapted to releasably receive the storage to retain the melted solder retrieved through the tip positioned (figure 1, vacuum tube); where the cavity can be directly inserted and removed without opening the handle (figure 1, item 22); where the housing has a u-shaped radiation member (figure 1, the profile of the housing); where the longitudinal centerlines of the desoldering channel are aligned (figure 1, vacuum tube). Siegel teaches a heating element disposed between the tip and the storage (figure 2, item 52 and 72) where the heater is disposed between the pointed end of the desoldering tip and the desoldering storage cartridge and surrounding at least a portion of the desoldering channel (figure 2, item 52 and 72). Knobbe teaches the desirability of a removable pistol type handle to control the fluid flow (figure 4, item 77). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the system of Dugard to utilize the heating element disposed between the tip and the storage in order to provide a short tip to grip ratio and utilize less wattage (see Siegel col. 2, ll. 30-60) and further to utilize the removable handle in order to improve its ergonomics (see Knobbe col. 3, ll. 5-25).

Response to Arguments

Applicant argues Dugard does not teach the newly claimed limitation of "handle having an opening in a side thereof defining a cavity." The examiner disagrees. During patent examination, the pending claims must be "given the broadest reasonable interpretation." Applicant always has the opportunity to amend the claims during prosecution, and broad interpretation by the examiner reduces the possibility that the claim, once issued, will be interpreted more broadly than is justified. In re Prater, 415 F.2d 1393, 1404-05, 162 USPQ 541, 550-51 (CCPA 1969). In the instant case, while the examiner agrees that Dugard does not teach an opening at the exterior side of the exterior-most wall of the handle, it is the examiner's position that Dugard teaches the handle having an opening in a interior side of the exterior wall, which defines a cavity.

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., the opening is at the exterior side of the exterior-most wall of the handle) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

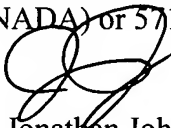

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
